With its ultra-low profile, this streamlined rooftop unit is aerodynamically designed to reduce drag when on the move. It also looks fantastic! The high-performance motor and fan deliver powerful cooling performance using a more eco-friendly R410A refrigerant. Despite its compact and lightweight design, features such as the robust rib-reinforced base pan ensure that the Penguin II can handle tough environments for a longer service life.In 2011, NASA was on the lookout for an air conditioning system to install in their lunar electric rover. They decided they needed expert help and consulted numerous suppliers. Finally, after a rigorous selection process, the space agency chose Dometic. "We've had a lot of firsts over the years, but this custom job presented special challenges for our engineers," said a spokesperson for Dometic. After extensive trials in Arizona, where the system had to keep scientists and their equipment cool and dry, our technology is now ready for extra-terrestrial duty. Low-slung, it does not exceed 11-1 / 4 " and its sleek shell reduces wind resistance when the vehicle is in motion. A reinforced ribbed base plate provides long-term strength, while R410A refrigerant is more environmentally friendly and releases heat efficiently. Its high performance motor and fan provide high quality cooling performance.
